On February 25, 2014, Sister Kathryn Fitz-Gerald celebrated her 100th birthday, with a gathering of Ursulines at Andrus on Hudson, where Kathryn resides. A festive occasion, she enjoyed the party with sisters who also are residents there and sisters from her former community of St. Teresa in New Rochelle. The occasion provides a picture of the sisters at Andrus who are part of the province, and whose care requires specialized service.

The formal name of Andrus has a sub-title that is descriptive: A Long-Term Care Community Fostering Independence and Well-being for Elders. Looking around the table at the birthday party reveals the way that Andrus’ mission affects sisters with varying disabilities and health needs. It’s never good news to hear that one needs a long-term health-care facility. Yet, care and companionship ease the adjustment to living away from home in an elder residence much larger and diverse than the communities the sisters formerly lived in.

Supplementing the services of Andrus and mindful of the sisters’ dedication as religious, Sister Pascal Conforti is delegate superior to the Ursuline residents, seeing to their comfort and care. And what an interesting and varied group they are, living with serious physical or cognitive limitations with dignity and good cheer. Depending on each one’s capacities and abilities, the sisters interact with each other and participate in activities of the residence. Sister Mary Jane Robertshaw, who for years taught art at the College of New Rochelle, attended an art class and talked to the group about her sculpture of St. Angela, as well as encouraging the participants to try their hand at drawing. Some, like Sisters Marjorie Stumpf and Virginia Maxwell, visit other residents who might not be able to get around easily or who are bedridden.

Thanks to her trusty computer, Sister Marie Albert Walsh continues as a dauntless worker for the organization where she last served, the Ministry of Caring in Wilmington. Sister Eileen Fane, who founded the Adult Learning Center in New Rochelle, was interviewed for a video presentation on the work of the Center. It will be used for promotion and fundraising. Sisters Winifred Danwitz, Gloria Marie Sullivan, and Marie Albert Walsh formerly served on the Residents Council. For the sisters at Andrus life is changed, not taken away.

One most unusual development involves Sister Irene Mahoney, an established writer who has lost most of her sight, and at 93 continues to think “writerly.” In regular conversations with a man at the dining room table, she became interested in his stories about service in World War II. He is delighted to tell his stories. And Sister Irene consulted with his family. Continued on p. 6
Bylines heard from a couple of you with possible stories for this publication. Thank you.

As we work on those story ideas, we invite other readers to drop a note to the Editor about all things Ursuline. Maybe this is a specific moment framed by a recollection. Perhaps this is an observation about a practice or perspective cultivated over many years. Can you offer comments on an article in this issue or an earlier issue of Bylines?

Simply, we want to hear the clarity of your voice. If you have photos, please include these with your name and a phone number. If sending as an e-mail, the address is devofc@aol.com. Please put ‘Letter to the Editor’ in the subject line. Hard copies may be sent to: Ursuline Provincialate, 1338 North Avenue, New Rochelle, NY 10804. Mark your envelope “Letter to the Editor.”

I look forward to hearing from you.

In February it was reported that Mother Marie of the Incarnation, Ursuline missionary to Canada, and two other key figures from the “New World,” will be declared saints before the end of the year.

Mother Denis Mahoney, OSU (Irene Mahoney), wrote a biography of her life, Marie of the Incarnation: Mystic and Missionary (Doubleday, 1964).

The Adult Learning Center (ALC) held its 17th Annual Gala Benefit on April 3, 2014, at The Fountainhead in New Rochelle. This year’s honorees for service to the local community of New Rochelle were Jewelle Prieto, restaurateur, the Don Coqui Restaurant Group; Stephen J. Trauzzi, M.D., F.A.C.S., consultant urologist on staff at Calvary Hospital, Westchester Medical Center, Lawrence Hospital and St. Luke’s-Roosevelt Hospital; and ALC graduate Angela Picardo, R.N., who was recognized as “Volunteer in the Spotlight” and who is a volunteer teacher of ESL.

Ursuline Educational Services (UES) will hold its global education conference at the College of New Rochelle from June 15-20. The conference, Global Education in the Ursuline Spirit, will foster collaboration among educational institutions sponsored by or affiliated with Ursuline Sisters worldwide. Participants will share successful educational endeavors as well as strategies for fostering Ursuline values in the classroom. Participants will also develop or reinforce partnerships among Ursuline schools worldwide.

Sr. Martha Counihan, OSU was recently awarded a grant in coordination with the archivist at Manhattanville College on the National Federation of Catholic College Students, a social action organization among Catholic colleges, universities, and Newman clubs. NFCCS involved thousands of students in several regions. The College of New Rochelle and Manhattanville were active participants between 1937 and 1967. Read about the grant and see digitized materials at www.cnr.edu on the Gill Library web page.

On March 10 The Upper Room hosted Auxiliary Bishop Emeritus Emil A. Wcela from the Diocese of Rockville Center. Bishop Wcela, Scripture scholar, author, lecturer, award-winning columnist and past president and member of the Catholic Biblical Association, presented his views on Lay Ministry Since Vatican II.

Last fall, Sr. Beth Dowd, OSU and Songcatchers received the Diversity Award from the American Jewish Committee. The Songcatcher After-School Music Program engages children of low-income families in song while building diversity in the local community. Video of the Awards Breakfast, including the Songcatchers performance may be seen at www.songcatchers.org.

On April 27 at 3 p.m. Songcatchers will hold a concert in St. Gabriel’s auditorium, New Rochelle, featuring the talented volunteers from the After-School Music Program and the Songcatcher Choir Camp. The program will include instrumental solos and ensembles, and conclude with combined choral and instrumental solos and ensembles.
At a Provincial Chapter held on February 8, 2014, the Roman Union Ursulines of the Eastern Province elected a new Provincial Prioress and Provincial Council. Sr. Jane Finnerty, currently serving on the present Provincial Council, was elected Provincial. She will replace current provincial, Sr. Mary Sullivan. The newly elected provincial and councilors will assume office on May 1, 2014.

Sr. Jane’s recent previous ministries, besides those in province roles, include Pastoral Associate/Religious Education Coordinator at St. John the Baptist Parish in Yonkers; Executive Director of the Religious Formation Conference National Office in Washington, DC, and Tertian Directress for the Ursulines, in Rome.

The newly elected Provincial Councilors are Sr. Ann Peterson, currently serving on the present Provincial Council; Sr. Patricia Russell, currently Owners Representative for Property Development and Leasing for the province; Sr. Joan Woodcome, Director of Special Projects at The Ursuline School in New Rochelle; and Sr. Maureen Welch, Assistant Director of the Partnership for Global Justice, an NGO at the UN.

As I see it at this time I am inspired and encouraged by two wonderful events this year, one past and one to come. The General Chapter of Ursulines held in Rome last fall was a transforming event for the participants; the call from this gathering, “to dare to be the change we wish to see in our world,…and to respond to the cries of the earth and its people,” will reverberate wherever Ursulines live and work.

The other event is the forthcoming Ursuline Global Education Conference being sponsored by UES, Ursuline Educational Services. This will bring together Ursulines and their colleagues from around the world to look at education from a global perspective. The Conference will take place at The College of New Rochelle, June 15–20, with representatives from Ursuline schools in the U.S. and around the globe, from every continent. What possibilities!

And, as I see it for myself, after some rest, I will reinsert myself in searching for the deeper meaning of the “universe story” through reading and reflection and a workshop, “The Mystical Perspective of Earth and Cosmic Consciousness.” In dealing with the smaller details of life, I find it helpful to keep looking at the larger picture. And then, who knows?

Finally, as I see it, Ursulines, their friends, and benefactors have been blessed and gifted. So in the words of Angela, “Continue the good work you have begun” and have confidence in her promise, “I will always be in your midst…” Amen.
When the Ursuline Associates were formed in the late 1980s at the initiative of Sr. Carol Ranges, two groups in New Rochelle emerged. One included a number of CNR alumnae who were active in the College of New Rochelle Alumnae Association; the other, mentored by Sr. Jeanne Brennan, included women who were employed at the college. Sr. Mary Boyan, former faculty member and a long-time member of the Alumnae Board, invited those on the Board to consider joining the group she was forming. Alice Duffy Grant, also a long-time participant on the Alumnae Board, eagerly joined.

Alice is a graduate of The College of New Rochelle (also the daughter and sister of alumnae) and has long been active in CNR alumnae and other college organizations. Currently retired from 34 years of teaching history at Pelham High School where she was involved in myriad teaching and mentoring activities, Alice became an Ursuline Associate early in its history and continues to be an active member. Presently, she provides teacher training/professional development for New York State school districts and for the College Board as well as ongoing professional development for teachers in Catholic high schools locally and on Long Island.

Alice has recently been involved in recruiting for the Admissions Office at CNR via her contacts with Catholic high schools and guidance teachers. She said, “I consider myself fortunate to have received such excellent academic and personal preparation at CNR for the teaching and mentoring responsibilities I was asked to assume in my career.”

In Wind in the Buffalo Grass, Sr. Marian Bohen reflects on her almost twenty-five years as an Ursuline missionary in Indonesia. With humor and wisdom, she takes us on a journey of a fulfilled life among ethnic and religious groups in Java, Kalimantan and Western Papua, where she discovers the richness of the human family in the language and customs of the people she encounters. JUBILARIANS OF 2014

On the anniversary of their religious profession we honor the Ursulines who have dedicated their lives to God and who have faithfully served others and the church. A celebration of their profession of the vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience in the Eastern Province of Ursulines of the Roman Union, will be held in May. This year our Jubilarians were asked to reflect on the occasion. Their responses follow.

75 YEARS - JANUARY 1939

“When I was 10 years old, I first saw two Ursulines laughing and talking to each other. I found myself saying, ‘I want to be like that when I grow up.’ On January 24, 1939, I woke up, looked out the window, and began to sing a song popular at that time: ‘It’s June in January, because I’m in love.’ It was my profession day. On January 24, 1980, on my return trip to Africa, on a hotel stopover at dinner, a song came over the speaker, ‘It’s June in January.’ I have come to realize the Gift of Memory in these and other experiences. How grateful I am for God’s word, presence, and working in my life and others.”

Anne Marie Kelleher

60 YEARS - JANUARY 1954

Looking back on these challenging and enriching experiences, I find myself deeply grateful and blessed for God’s call to the Ursulines.”

Mildred Haipt

“As an Ursuline, I am grateful for the education and training in the spiritual life and for the freedom I have had to follow what I felt called to and where I could make a contribution.”

Carole Marie Keaney

“It was at the College of New Rochelle that I first met the Ursulines. Remarkably distinctive personalities though they were, two things struck me about them as a group: they prayed, and they loved each other. In all these years, they’ve never let me down. It’s humbling to be one of them. Thank you, thank you.”

Marie-Celine Miranda

“My Ursuline life has broadened my outlook on life, and it continues to be a never-ending learning experience that continues to this day.”

Mary Jane Robertshaw

“What an absolute gift my vocation is. Perhaps gratitude is the only response to the gift of these many years. I am grateful for the many changes in religious life, especially reclaiming my name, for my music, and most of all for my family, always accepting, always life-giving. And for my long-suffering Ursuline sisters. I am grateful for their example, their support, and their forbearance. How could I have made it through without them?”

Elizabeth Ann Sommer

“Sixty years of ups and downs in life have increased my gratitude to so many of my family, friends, and fellow Ursulines. Life called me to be present in a variety of cultures and religions in Asia, notably Indonesia, and the western world, increasing knowledge of God by and in so many others. The God within us is revelatory, so revealing of our world. I am truly grateful for life and for all who are in my life.”

From the beginning, Mary Walter knew she wanted to serve in the missions. She has fulfilled that calling from her profession to her appointment to Thailand, with generosity of spirit, dauntless humor, and unflagging service, even reaching beyond Thailand to assist in a variety of works in other parts of southeast Asia and for the regional bishops conference. Incapacitated at this time, she is a well-loved jubilarian.

“Gratitude: for the call and presence of God all along the journey; for the many happy years teaching and service to the province; for the beautiful persons I’ve met – sisters, students, friends. Everything is gift, the grace of a loving God.”

“I hope to continue to serve the people of God for years to come, and when the time comes for me to slow down, I hope I can open my hands to receive what surprises the Lord has in store for me. Perhaps, I’ll tend a little garden!”

“The infinite goodness of God, the love and fidelity of my Ursuline Sisters, and the knowledge, that in these changing times, St. Angela is with us lending aid to our prayers encourages me to continue to open my heart to God’s call.”

who are also interested in getting a record of his life, as she undertakes doing a narrative of his experiences. He asserted with vigor: “I’m gonna be a book!”

And then there is the satisfaction of finding people at Andrus who have past connections with Ursulines, such as the sister of the late Sister Marie Jerome Murray. The sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame who are residents share the daily Mass. One of them formerly worked in the library of the Academy of Mount St. Ursula. One of the Little Sisters of the Assumption residents formerly worked with Sister Pascal at St. Clare’s Hospital.

Andrus has a rehabilitation facility that provides therapy to get people going - and it does. Some Ursulines have benefited from it for short term treatment as well as its care for the residents.

In her specific position for the Ursulines at Andrus, Sister Pascal is assisted by three others, employed by the Ursulines: Kathy Vernazza, a Registered Nurse, is full-time, tending to the sisters’ health needs; Certified Nursing Assistant Calli Patterson fulfills a multitude of personal services; and Danielle Iodice assists in things like taking sisters for walks, shopping, and appointments. They are a fine and dedicated team whose attentiveness and good service contribute to the care, comfort, and companionship of the Ursuline elders at Andrus.

Visitors, whether sisters of the province, relatives, or friends, are expressions of care for the sisters and connections to the world that is still theirs.

This portrait outlines how Ursuline benefactors and friends contribute to enriching the lives of the elderly and infirm Ursuline sisters as they live out their dedicated lives.
On January 25, two days before the feast of Ursuline foundress St. Angela Merici, the sisters of the province gathered to honor her in recommitting to her spirit and vision. Associates and friends were invited to share the occasion, held at the College of New Rochelle to accommodate the gathering.

The highlight of the day was speaker Sr. Simone Campbell, director of Network and a national voice for Catholic social justice in American life. Her talk was called “Hearts on Fire: Welcoming the Stranger.” Simone began her presentation with a tribute to St. Angela and to the companions she has inspired through the centuries. Drawing on the contemplative response, a practice developed to consider current issues, what followed was an exploration of those issues affecting women religious, notably the censure of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, and the many issues regarding “the pain of the world.”

Using Biblical narratives, she spoke of the Burning Bush, illuminating the radical acceptance of “a world worth fighting for,” and the story of the Samaritan woman whom Jesus, against the customs of the time, asked for help, a cup of water, whereby abundant blessings opened up to her in unexpected places.

While Sr. Simone spoke eloquently of the contemplative spirit with which to approach the needs of our times, she used poems she has written to express what she described. “I ache, tremble/almost weep at folks . . . faced with spiritual famine/of epic proportions. . . . Apostle like, I whine: /‘What are we among so many?’”

For women religious in these times of great change in their lives along with great opportunities to serve, she invoked the rich heritage of prayer and service. And what is the answer? “The consistent 2000 year-old/ever-new response is:/‘Blessed and broken, you are/ enough.’ I savor the blessed,/cower at the broken and/pray ‘to be enough’ (from Loaves and Fishes).”

Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!

Through the generosity of a small group of donors (names listed in the 2012-2013 Annual Report) and a grant from the W. O’Neil Foundation, the Ursulines installed a generator at St. Teresa’s Convent in New Rochelle. In the event of a future power outage, the sisters can now be assured of continued electricity for lights, elevator, heating system, and food service.

We are grateful to those who contributed to this project.

n 1893, the Ursuline nuns were asked by Bishop Alfred A. Curtis to establish a school in Wilmington, Delaware. For the past 120 years, they have served students and their families from throughout the greater Wilmington community with great love and respect. The convent in the center of the Ursuline Academy campus housed hundreds of Ursuline Sisters over time, visitors from other Ursuline schools throughout the world, and even served as a home for student boarders from 1924 to 1953. St. Angela reminds us that change is inevitable and that the Sisters should seek advice and make new decisions prudently. Today we have done just that.

After several years of discernment, the Ursuline Provincial Council made the decision in 2011 to close the Ursuline Convent in Wilmington. In February 2014 the Ursulines who were living in the convent moved out. This was a difficult decision occasioned by decreasing personnel, the health needs of aging Sisters, and increased costs from underutilization of the convent building. This story is not unique to the Ursulines, as many religious communities in the United States find themselves in similar situations.

Some of the Sisters will remain in Wilmington to keep alive their relationship with former students and with the Ursuline Associates. Sr. Betty McAdams is teaching at the Ursuline Academy, Sr. Jeanne Cashman is contributing to the work of the Ministry of Caring, and Sr. Joanne Desmond is an active presence at The Lorelton. Sr. Carol Ann Holder serves in Compassionate Care Hospice, Sr. Marion Lynch continues in her spiritual ministry, and Sr. Mildred Haipt is active in building up Serviam Girls’ Academy, for students who benefit from extra attention and opportunities. Sr. Stephanie Wilson, superior of the Wilmington community, has been busy in clearing up remaining community business in the convent. Srs. Laurence Montgomery, Regina Gagnier and Jeanne Hamilton are living in the Bedford Park North Avenue community.

During January the Sisters’ contributions were celebrated a number of times by the school, Associates, alumnae and friends of the community. Bishop Malooly, the Bishop of Wilmington, joined them for several of these occasions.

Casual Affairs: the Life and Fiction of Sally Benson by Maryellen Keefe, OSU, Ph. D., has been released by SUNY Press. It is the only biography of a woman whose fiction inspired the popular Hollywood film, Meet Me in St. Louis, soon to celebrate its 70th anniversary.

Keefe’s biography draws chiefly from personal correspondence, interviews with Benson’s family members and New Yorker colleagues, and research in the New Yorker magazine’s archives. This long-awaited biography of Sally Benson should interest scholars in women’s studies, film history, gender studies, and women’s fiction.

PROVINCE MISSION STATEMENT

We, Ursulines of the Eastern Province of the United States, are women religious in an international community, united by the vision and spirit of our foundress, St. Angela Merici.

Impelled by deep personal love for Jesus Christ, Angela sought in a life of prayer and action to bring people from all segments of society to a deeper love of God and one another.

We follow Angela in the service of this twofold love. While we continue to proclaim the Gospel in our traditional work of education, we welcome the call of the Spirit to new ministries.

In response to the needs of our times, we commit ourselves, in both our life and our work, to solidarity with the poor; to the pursuit of justice for all, especially women; and to collaboration with the laity.

As a community that values both tradition and progress, we move into the future with courage and with trust in God.
